Evan Stroman is an attorney in Kozyak Tropin & Throckmorton's complex litigation department.

Evan graduated with a B.S. in accounting from Miami University and received his Juris Doctor from the University of Miami School of Law.

Prior to law school, Evan earned his CPA while working for Crowe Horwath as an external auditor in the banking industry. As an auditor, he analyzed estimated future losses on his clients' loan portfolios and performed due diligence for banks seeking to grow through horizontal mergers.

While in law school, Evan worked as both a trusts & estates and bankruptcy legal research assistant, and was involved in writing a trust & estates textbook. He also interned for the United States Trustee's Office, and through the University of Miami Bankruptcy Pro Bono Assistance Clinic, represented clients throughout the entire Chapter 7 process.

Evan is an avid distance runner, soccer, and volleyball player, and is passionate about combining running with community outreach.
